It was a challenge to do the Master of Education (Teaching and Learning) while working as a full-time teacher at HELP International School. I was however blessed to have very supportive lecturers and supervisors throughout my graduate studies.

My research supervisor guided me to be an effective teacher-researcher and helped me manage my time well.

My research was selected to be presented at one of the HELP University's Research Fest events and at one of the largest Chinese Language conferences in Singapore. The experience was awesome!

I am thankful that HELP's Master of Education (Teaching and Learning) gave me a solid foundation in the principles of teaching and learning. This has allowed me to advance in my profession as an educator."
